Healthcare mergers and acquisitions answer book 2017

Take into account new strategies in the market and take into account what will happen in terms of the portfolio - how customers will be taken care of, what infrastructure needs will be. An important consideration is to redefine core roles and capabilities and to sort out which core values are sustainable in the combined entity. The management structure will be crucial in making long-term efforts work. They are all factors to consider, especially since many expect more mergers in the future. I think we'll see more mergers until the DOJ says ,'This is not in the best interests of consumers, the economy and competitiveness'.'
